

المحافظة على سلالة النحل الصحراوي Apis Mellifera Saharan

أ. خنفر عمار      شنان نصر الدين - الجزائر

Abstract

As part of the program of preservation of the Saharan honeybee breed threatened with redemption in the Saharan regions a team of multidisciplinary research composed of engineers of the technical institute of animal husbandry (I t e l v) from the university of boumerdes and from the national association of the stockbreeders of queens initiates a plan of preservation and rehabilitation of this breed the team has already started the missions of canvassing in 2003-2004 and could constitute a core of beekeepers interested by the takes of this making misread is of view of the biometry mitochondrial.dna and the bio ecology .

The major objective of our study is to identify this system of animal husbandry which exists in the traditional state in these Saharan regions with the aim of his modernization by taking into account autochthonous practices and the rehabilitation of this breed in danger who remains a tame kind called to contribute to the improvement of the incomes of populations living in a very hostile middle.

